stateboards.ie operates under the auspices of the Public Appointments Service and is committed to a policy of equal opportunity.

The Public Appointments Service (PAS), established under statute in 2004, provides an independent shared service in recruitment, assessment and selection to organisations across the Civil and Public Services. On 30 September 2014, the Government decided that the PAS should also be given responsibility for putting in place an open, accessible, rigorous and transparent system to support Ministers in making appointments to State Boards. Our dedicated website, www.stateboards.ie, is the channel through which the PAS advertises vacancies on State Boards. It is also the means through which accomplished, experienced and qualified people, including people who might not previously have been identified as available for appointment, can then apply to be considered for particular vacancies.

Membership of State Boards

High standards of corporate governance in all State Agencies, whether in the commercial or non-commercial sphere, are critical to ensuring a positive contribution to the State's overall social and economic development.

Members of State Boards are appointed to act on behalf of the citizen to oversee the running of the affairs of state bodies. State bodies must serve the interests of the taxpayer, pursue value for money in their endeavours (including managing risk appropriately), and act transparently as public entities. Members of State Boards, and the relevant management team, are accountable for the proper management of the organisation.

Board members should act on a fully informed basis, in good faith, with due diligence and care, and in the best interest of the State body, subject to the objectives set by Government. In that regard and in accordance with 13.2 of the Guidelines on Appointments to State Boards, "it is advisable that no member of a State Board should serve more than two full terms of appointment or should hold appointments to more than two State Boards."

The Code of Practice for the Governance of State Bodies 2016 (the Code) provides a framework for the application of best practice in corporate governance by both commercial and non-commercial State bodies.

In order to be an effective contributor on a State Board it is recommended that members should:

- bring independent and objective scrutiny to the oversight of the organisation;
- be prepared to be challenging when necessary while being supportive to the delivery of organisational strategy and objectives;
- be equipped to offer considered advice on the basis of sound judgement and experience;
- be prepared to make a time commitment to their work commensurate with their role.

1. Background

The HSE is a statutory body under the aegis of the Department of Health, charged with the provision of a wide range of health and social services. The HSE has a budget of €14.5 billion in 2018. The public health service has over 110,000 staff in whole time equivalent terms and is the largest employer in the country. The HSE is amongst the most important public bodies in the State, with an essential role in meeting the health needs of the population and delivering on the Government's ambition of improving population health and the health services.

The HSE was established on 1 January 2005 as a new State body with wide ranging responsibilities, including managing and delivering health and personal social services or arranging for these to be delivered on its behalf.

A Directorate governance structure was put in place for the HSE in 2013. In 2017 the Oireachtas Committee on the Future of Healthcare published a roadmap for change in our health services (Sláintecare Report). One of its recommendations is an independent Board for the HSE.

2. The Board of the Health Service Executive

The Bill providing the legislative base for a Board governance structure has been published. This legislation is on the Government's priority list of Bills and, working with members of the Oireachtas, the Minister intends to bring the legislation through both Houses as soon as possible.

Under the new legislation, the Board will be the governing body of the HSE and will be accountable to the Minister for the performance of its functions and the CEO will be accountable to the Board.

A Board governance structure, with strong competencies across key areas, will be a key component in strengthening HSE governance and will contribute to strengthening the oversight and performance of the HSE.

Immediate priority issues for the Board include

- developing and implementing an effective performance management and accountability system in the HSE
- developing a plan for building public trust and confidence in the HSE and the wider health service
- ensuring the HSE's full support for and implementation of the Government's programme of health reform as set out in the Sláintecare Implementation Strategy.

The Board's role is ensuring the effective delivery of services. In order to do this it must put in place effective systems for patient safety, accountability, performance management, corporate governance, financial management and it must also build public trust. There has been significant additional health service funding in recent years and this has supported development in targeted service areas. Within the total resources available the HSE has achieved significant operational improvements and improved outcomes in important areas. Nevertheless, the system faces a number of challenges, including a growing and ageing population, health inequalities and attracting and retaining the right workforce.

2.1 Sláintecare Implementation Strategy and the HSE

The Government has committed to a very significant programme of health reforms arising from the Sláintecare report. These include changes and improvements to health services, and also a range of measures to strengthen structures, governance and accountability. This will entail significant changes to the HSE itself.

Among the recommendations put forward are:

- Introduction of a board for the HSE, accountable to the Minister and with the CEO accountable to the Board;
- A new organisational and operational structure for the future reconfigured health service, the HSE and national and regional integrated care organisations;
- Development of a blueprint for clinical governance across the health system, underpinned by legislation which specifies standards and structures;
- Introduction of an overarching governance framework that integrates clinical governance with corporate governance, setting out the roles, responsibilities and accountabilities of organisations and individuals within the public health service.

These recommendations are central to delivering meaningful reform of the health service.

The Sláintecare Implementation Strategy sets out a concrete programme of reform for the next decade, including a more detailed programme for the immediate years ahead. www.gov.ie/slaintecare

The establishment of the HSE Board comes at a time when public confidence in the health system in Ireland needs to be strengthened. The ability to build confidence and trust in the service and a sense of ownership and pride among health service workers will be a key requirement for the incoming Board and its CEO.

Following a Public Appointments Service (PAS) process the Minister has nominated Mr Ciarán Devane as the Chairperson Designate of the Board.

Again, under the auspices of PAS, a recruitment process for a CEO is underway with a view to an early appointment.

There will be a need to provide strong leadership in developing an organisational culture that delivers for patients and service users, in line with Government health policy. It will also be necessary to prioritise the examination of the structure, responsibilities, capacity, skills and experience at senior level within the organisation, in line with the importance of the organisation to the public and Government of Ireland. The HSE Board will be required to drive and oversee a significant programme of change and reform in a challenging environment.

3. Role of Board Members

The Board must ensure that the HSE has a clear multi-annual strategic plan and a corresponding annual service plan, and that these plans are achievable within budget allocations. Its members must maintain high standards of integrity and probity and develop clear expectations concerning culture, values and behaviours and ensure personal and corporate compliance with any relevant legislation.

Board members must work with the Chair to ensure the Board is effective and performs efficiently in all aspects of its role. This will include establishing the Board governance structures and ensuring their effective and cohesive operation.

The appointed candidates will:

- Work under the leadership of the Chair, to introduce and operate effective Board governance processes;
- Play a central role in relation to the direction, leadership and corporate and clinical governance of the HSE;
- Foster a positive relationship with the HSE CEO and HSE Executive team in order to facilitate the conduct of good governance and challenge and support them to deliver priorities and improvements whilst holding them to account in doing so;
- Support and challenge the CEO and HSE Executive team in establishing an effective performance management and accountability system in the HSE;
- Promote a culture of accountability, and ensure that the HSE demonstrates value achieved for the very significant public funds provided to health and instil an organisational culture of continuous improvement;
- Develop constructive external relationships, including with the Minister for Health, the Department of Health and the Government;

- Support the work of the Board to drive and oversee a significant programme of reform in a challenging environment.
